Commentary: S.1 – 3: 100 – 200 words	Reporter:	Welcome to our show. Today, we are very honoured to have the greatest photographer of the year to tell us about his inspirations behind this marvelous photo.
	Photographer:	I'm delighted.
S.4 – 7: 200 – 300 words	Reporter:	So, what inspired you to take this picture?
	Photographer:	I am myself a nature lover. Whenever I'm close to the nature, I feel comfortable and peaceful. I can put behind all my worries. Therefore, I'd like to take a photo to show the nature at its best.
	Reporter:	I see. And where did you take this photo?
	Photographer:	The photo was taken at Hong Kong Wetland Park in early November. The weather was perfect and the air was fresh and clean there. I was just wandering around the park and this little butterfly suddenly appeared right in front of my eyes.
	Photographer:	Technique-wise, it wasn't very difficult. I just needed to stand still and be patient so that I wouldn't scare the butterfly away and would be able to wait for it to display its finest posture.
	Reporter:	So, what was the most difficult part?
	Photographer:	It was certainly the effort to preserve the environment. There aren't many places like the Wetland Park where photographers can take beautiful pictures of the natural scenery. It needs lots of money and the support of the society to maintain the park. But I think it's worth the hard work. If we don't preserve the environment, all these lovely creatures will disappear and we won't be able to take these wonderful photos anymore.
	Reporter:	I see. Friends who are in front of the TV, if you don't want the beauty you see in the photograph disappears, you must also help make the world a better place. Thank you for watching our show today.
